

Evidence-Informed Interventions for Court-Involved Families

Promoting Healthy Coping and Development

Evidence-Informed Interventions for Court-Involved Families provides a critical, research-informed analysis of the core factors to consider when developing child-centered approaches to therapy and other family interventions, both in formal treatment settings and in promoting healthy engagement with the other systems and activities critical to children's daily lives.

FEATURES:

- Brings together in one place evidence and conceptual models from a variety of fields relevant to providing services to court involved families
- Provides practical examples, sample forms, resources, and other tools applicable to court involved families
- An invaluable resource to practitioners who may not be familiar with literature from related subject areas such as domestic violence, attachment, and child development
